himself with him; and must necessally share whatever blame must atta to him. Viewing the matter in the light, and considering it merely as question of fact, without impaching motives, I cannot but feel that the course of eventa has been highly a verse to the public interest. Two consequences, deeply to be deplored, as strikes me, result from the appointment of Mr. Clay. It is calculated excite, and has in fact excited, sus accounts to the purity of our public as Whatever may have been the most of Mr. Adams in offering and Mr. Clin accepting the Department of Mr. there are thousands of citizens we can ase in their recents. there are thousands of citizens we can see in the transaction, as there lieve, evidence of corrupt political begaining, which improposite gaining, which impression is confrontly the previous unfriendly relation isting between them, and which our out of deference to public opinion have prevented the appointment t acceptance.
But there is another, and in my pinion more disastrous consequent The precedent is eminently dangered As the constitution now stands, the lection of President must frequen devolve on the house, and he must ha but a slight knowledge of human a ture, who does not see, that the te dency of the example is to introl-corruption. The necessity of resist this example is, in my opinion, in small degree increased by the fact that the proposed amendment to a constitution, to take the election who ly out of the House of Representative has failed. As the constitution no stands, there is but one remedy whi I can see, and that is not to re-ele-Mr. Adams, and thereby reverse t precedent, and it must be apparent all, that just in proportion as it is in portant, that the election of the Predent should be made by the peop themselves—in the same proportion the precedent dangerous and ought be resisted. I will allude to but one more obje tion, which also I have made to you conversation. I refer to the mann in which appointments have been di tributed. The administration has bee accused of adopting the system some European monarchies, of bayis up political enemies. I have not see this objection satisfactorily answere It is well known that there were no tw parties more warmly opposed in the tate presidential contest than the sur porters of Mr. Adams, and those wh advocated a congressional caucus. The friends of Mr. Adams objected the the latter were opposed to the estalishments for the defence of the cour try, and that instead of relying upo their confidence in a congression caucus and the management of politic leaders, while the latter no less strent ously objected to Mr. Adams, that h political principles were unsound, and that his temper and want of knowled of men, disqualified him for that his office. Yet there has been apparent a systematic and continued effort of the part of the administration to secur the support of its decided political of ponents, by lavishing appointments of them. I know not how to reconcil this seeming contradiction. In object ing to it I am not actuated by illiera feetings, but by principle. I would be amongst the last to object to a mag nanimous course as it regards appointments: but it is manifest, that praise worthy as such magnatimity may be an application of the vast patronage the government to obtain partizans on the other hand, in an equal degre censurable. Whether the systematic appointment of political opponents is referrible to one or the other of these cause can only be judged by taking into c sideration all the circumstances. must confess that regarding it in the most liberal manner, I see much, the it is difficult for me to account far upo the ground of magnanimity: and it this view of the subject, it is needles for me to say I cannot give my appreval. I consider liberty as no longe in danger from force or prerogative Any attempt to exercise either, illegal ly or improperly, would, in the present enlightened period immediately unit the whole community and would only end in disgrace and defeat. But while danger from that quarter has ceased it must be obvious to every one, whis in the least conversant with the his tory of modern times, that a new an more formidable enemy has appeare in the shape of governmental patrons or influence. The liberty of England which so triumphantly resisted fore and prerogative, has been long sink ing under the insidious attacks of the new and more dangerous antagonist and must from all appearances, final and treetrievably perish under its as saults. We ought to be admonished by this and other examples, to guar against the approaches of this new c nemy; and I deem it to be among the most effectual guards for the peo-ple to exercise an habitual and incress ing vigilance over the exercise of the patronage of the government, in order that the means, which may be place under the control of the public agent to carry on the operations of governments. may not be perverted in to fistruments of corruption and an infirm a National State of Corruption and State of Corru bis election, bitton. Without such vigilance, in his gift, by capriot but have a foreboding that of ly hientified institutions, with all their grants is

d world. I have now, my dear sir, distinctly stated the reasons, which have induced me to think the public good requires riat Mr. Adams should not be re-elec-ted-and although if I were a member of Congress and the Presidential elecould devolve on the House, I hould deem it my duty, as before statel, to vote for him, if he had a majori-trof the votes in my district at the perious electoral election, yet on the spposition that General Jackson and Mr. Adams will be the only candilates at the next election, I should be smpelled by truth to say, if asked shich of the two I should personally refer, that General Jackson, who is pieled by a public declaration, to apport the proposed amendment of the Constitution, which I look upon as absolutely essential to the preservatien, in their purity, of the republican principles of our government, is my theire. This frank declaration, which, in consequence of the interest now felt in the question of the next President, vill probably put an end to my being acandidate, the Jackson ground being aready pre-occupied by my competiter, between whom and myself, there is to relation subsisting, which could gieme or my friends any right to exethim to retire, I have thought to ledge to truth, to sincerity, to good fairs to the voters generally, to the friendly relation which subsists between us, and to my own character: nd I deem it more especially due to be number of very respectable voters. the differ from me on the Presidenti election, but who, without reference a that object have honoured me, with massurance of their support in the Congressional contest. DREADFUL RIOT AT CARLISLE-On Tuesday asta dread-ful riot took place in Carline, during the canvass of Sir Philip Musgrave, late M. P. for that city. Having entereda yard in Milburne's buildings, Shaddan gate, with his friends, they were surrounded by the populace, who reproached the candidate for his vote on the Corn Laws and of Mr. on the Corn Laws, and of Mr. Aberon the Corn Laws, and of Mr. Aber-crombie's motion respecting the repre-sentation of Edinburgh, and insisted on his giving a piedge for radical re-form. After some parley, Sir P. and his friends got out of the yard into the street, but were assailed by the mob with stones &c. and all more or less injured. Major Wilde was brought to the ground by a blow from a stone on the ground by a blow from a stone on the head, and Sir P. was langed, but got into a house with one or two friends and fastened the door. Here they were kept prisoners for two bethree hours.

The Mayor and a large body of gentlemen & constables who attempted to liberate them being driven away by the missiles of the mob, who pelted them out of Shaddon-gate. Barnes, the police officer, with a cocked pistol in his hand, and another person got through the clowd, but were glad to escape back without accomplishing their object. This victory elated the people, and when a party of the 55th reg't. preceded by a few artillerymen, were brought up by the Mayor and magistrates, they were assailed in the same manner, and after the riot act had been read, were ordered to fire in their own defence. This they obeyed and unfor-tunately shot four persons who were not of the most guilty. Mary Burrill, a young woman of twenty-two, was shot dead as she stood at her own door in Queen street; a boy of 15, named Skinner, was shot through the leg; a man named Robert Noble, who said he was seeking his children in the crowd, received a ball in his breast, and little hopes were entertained of The last was a fine girl his recovery. of 14, named Pattinson, who was dreadfully wounded on the head, by a ball, which came through the shutter of the school, in which she was sitting, the windows having been closed by the mistress. Two Valuable Farms FOR SALE.

The Subscriber offers at Private Sale, on a liberal credit, the following REAL ESTATE:

A Farm situated in Broad Neck, Anne Arundel county, seven miles from Annapolis, adjoining the estates of James Mackubin and Horatio Rid. out, esquires, and containing about 250 Acres,

With a sufficient proportion of wood. land, the growth of which is princi. pilly oak, hickory, walnut, locust and poplar. The soil is naturally of an excellent quality, and susceptible of an easy and rapid improvement, by manuring with sea-ore, marsh manure, &c. This estate is situated at the mouth of Magothy River, in an agreeable neighbourhood, and binds on the Bay shore, affording a convenient water conveyance to market at all seasons, and one of the most beautiful and extensive water views in the county. The buildings are small, and of an inferior description; the fences in tolerable repair From the excellence of the soil, and its peculiarly advantageous situation, this farm ought to be a desirable object to a man of industry and enterprize.

Mr. Henry Hammond will shew

this property to any person who may wish to view it, and the terms, which will be liberal, and suited to the times, may be known on application to Col. Henry Maynadier, of Anna-polis, or to the subscriber, living ten miles from Baltimore, near the United States Arvenal.

Lying in Baltimore county, on the road leading from Cox's Town to Westminster, and adjoining the Heavy Ebaugh, esq. This Lying in Baltimore county, on the land of Henry Ebaugh, esq. This farm lies near the Patapsco Falls on the Asping Run, has a southern and eastern exposure, and is finely water-ed. Only a small part of this land is cleared, which however is under good fencing, and in a high state of cultivation. The balance is in thriving young timber, about 50 or 60 acres of which is fine tobacco land, and (it is believed) would yield more money to the industrious planter, in three years, from the tobacco crops alone, than is asked for the whole property. The improvements consist of a comfortable dwelling house and kitchen, just finished, a large tobacco house, stables, &c Benjamin Buckingham, living on this farm, will shew it to any person disposed to purchase, and the terms may be known by applying to Richard Hooker, esquire; near Cox's-Town, or to the subscriber
